

When a woman has owned her passionate nature, allowing love to flow into her heart, her thoughts grow wild and fierce and beautiful. Her juices flow, her heart expands, she has thrown off crutch and compromise. She has glimpsed the enchanted kingdom, the vast and magical realms of the Goddess within her.

Here all things are transformed. And there is purpose to this: that the world might be mothered back to a great and glorious state.

When a woman conceives her true self, a miracle occurs and life around her begins again.

Marianne Williamson